Chesapeake Man Sentenced on Child Pornography Charge

(Norfolk, Virginia) – Jamie Matthew Goglin, age 29, of Chesapeake, Virginia, was sentenced today on a child pornography charge to 108 months in prison, followed by lifetime supervised release. Chuck Rosenberg, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia; Thomas A. Betro, Director, Naval Criminal Investigative Service; and, William Reid, Special Agent in Charge, Washington D.C./Virginia Field Office, U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, made the announcement after Goglin was sentenced by United States District Judge Jerome B. Friedman. Goglin pled guilty to attempted receipt of child pornography on November 6, 2007.

According to court documents, Goglin's credit card was used to purchase a membership to a child pornography website. On April 3, 2007, federal agents searched Goglin's Chesapeake home pursuant to a warrant. Forensic review of the computer revealed approximately 9,000 still images and 200 videos of child pornography. Goglin admitted to agents that he had collected and viewed the material.

This case was investigated by the Naval Criminal Investigative Service and U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement. Assistant United States Attorney Michael C. Moore prosecuted the case on behalf of the United States.
